

FAMILY LAW: MATRIMONIAL & BUSINESS DISPUTES

Whitley Penn's Forensic & Litigation Services (FLS) professionals have been providing marital property and divorce related financial consulting services for more than three decades. Our professionals, which include Certified Public Accountants, Certified Fraud Examiners, and individuals who are Accredited in Business Valuation (ABV), possess the experience necessary to assist clients and their legal counselors during the difficult process of divorce.

Advisory Services Provided

Our forensic litigation practice is comprised of professionals specializing in finance, accounting, and economics, with deep experience in delivering economics and analyses in the marital property context. Our firm is capable of providing clear and concise presentations related to issues in either simple or complex divorce cases:

- Tracing and Characterizing Marital Assets: Texas is a community property state, meaning all assets at the time of divorce are either community or separate property assets. Whitley Penn provides forensic accounting to trace, characterize and identify separate property assets.
- Potential Tax Considerations: While divorce is typically a non-taxable event, without consideration of future tax consequences, divisions of assets can inadvertently create disproportionate asset divisions.
- Collaborative Law: If parties choose to use the collaborative law process for their divorce, Whitley Penn offers collaborative law trained financial advisors to assist the parties in the collaborative process.

Your Future is Our Focus
